U. S. FAVORITE OF CHINESE STUDENTS

Chinese Government Seeks to Curtail Number Emigrant Students

Associated Press.

PEKING, Oct. 11.—The American Legation has taken cognizance of an apparently authentic report that the ministry of education has issued instructions to authorities in the provinces to cut down the quota of students to be sent to America.

"In recent years there have been to many private students going to America," the ministry in question is alleged to have said in its communication to the provinces. "During the last 18 months the number is equal to 67 per cent of the total number of students going abroad. The reason why most of the students go to America is that they easily obtain admission into American colleges where they become special students. In two or three years they return to China being considered to have graduated.

"Although there are not a few who go to the United States to obtain a real education, a majority go simply to get a degree. Even if the standard of education in the United States is higher than in the students sould be restricted, otherwise it may result in the setting up of a special intellectual influence in the country.

"Now with the enforcement of the new American immigration law there is the more reason to check Chinese students from going there Beginning this year, any vacancy in the quota of government students going abroad should be filled by those desirous of pursuing their studies in Europe."

Strange Music Emanate From Hills at Night

Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 11.—Accounts of strange music coming out of space in the vicinity of Spirit Lake and Mount St. Helena have been received here recently.

Albert Weiss, who had business in the Spirit Lake region in connection with mining claims, asserted that he heard the music, which included arias from some of the operas. Weiss's story was not taken seriously until August Frye, sueprintendent of a Tacoma foundry, who ha dnever met Weiss, reported the same thing. Both men said the music was heard between 9 and 11 o'clock at night.

The tale has led to the supposition that radio waves from broadcasting stations have been picked up by ledges of minerals in that wild region, and reflected back as sound.

HAS NEWSPAPER 125 YEARS OLD

Death of Washington, Civil War News in Records Owned by Local Man

Old newspapers and record throwing an interesting light on conditions during the early life of the nation are in the possession of Joe Stewart, Exeter avenue, Middlesboro.

The oldest newspaper is the Philadelphia Gazette, of December, 1799. Among other interting news this journal gives accounts of the death of George Washington. Most of these are made up of dispatches from Washington, all run without headlines. A published excerpt from the Congressional Register department, written Samuel Brooks, of Virginia, deplores the death of the Revolutionary War chieftain and the first president

A want ad in the same issue offers for sale the unexpired term of five years of two negro slaves, man and wife, whom the advertiser describes as "industrious and honest."

A Boston dispatch relates the capture of a shark measuring 27 feet in length. From the liver of this giant fish, the writer declared 160 gallons of oil were rendered!

Real "Kentucky tobacco" was offered at a bargain in a small display advertisement.

The Federal Scout, published at Columbus, Ky., March 11, 1862, gave an interesting discourse on the Mason-Slidell affair which will be remembered, played an important part in history during the early part of the Civil War.

The National Intelligencer, a Washington Journal dated January 22, 1808, gives an interesting insight into newspaper advertising in that age before the Fourth Estate had come to the front as an advertising medium. One lengthy ad, set in small type, ennumerated the conditions of a "Grand Lottery" at which tickets were offered for $1.50 each. Prizes ranged from $10,000 down but the prospective shareholders were reminded that a tax of fifteen per cent would be charged the winners.

Another display advertisement in the same journal boldly offered "Dry and Wet" goods for sale, explaining that "genuine peach brandy seven years old" was included among the "wet" goods. Adjoining this was an advertisement offering a pair of pistols, "guaranteed to shoot from 200 to 300 yards," was noticed. A mahogany plush lined case went with this formidable pair of formidable duelling weapons.

Among the interesting documents is a bill for 220 bushels of wheat purchased by the Confederate army in 1863 for $4 per bushel. Across the top of the invoice appears this notation:" Captured by Col Dick at New Creek, Va., July, 1864."

JOHNSTON'S SABRE WANTED BY SISTER

Became Lost in Past Years, Worn by Lieutenant When He Fell.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 11.—Where is the sword that was carried by Lieutenant Peyton Johnston, a gallant young Virginian who was mortally wounded at the Battle of Cold Harbor.

A appeal has been made to the newspapers by a sister of Lt. Johnston for aid in locating the sword which seems to have become lost in the past.

It is de-cribed by Mrs. Charles E. Potts, 2314 Maplewood avenue, sister of Lt Johnston, as being an unusually beautiful piece ow workmanship The hilt was of mother of pearl and the blade and scabbard beautifully engraved.

The sword was presented to Lt Johnston by Col Hill Carter, of Shirley. Charles City county in 1861. The lieutenant was then an officer in the Richmond Fayette artillery. As commander of the Charles City Dragoons, Colónel Johnston wore it in many battles in the war between the states. It was in his possession when he fell at the battle of Cold Harbor, a mere lad of 21.

Sorry, Seed Tick, But Mistakes Will Happen

In the Daily News of October 8, an item from Shawnee, sent in by the correspondent, stated that the "Shawnee Tigers defeated the Seed Tick special ball team Sunday the score being 21 to 4 in favor of the Tigers." This report, writes W. H. Bolton, captain of the Seed Tick team was erroneous. He says the score was 8 to 4 in favor of the Seed Tick team.

Being captain of the Seed Tick aggregation, Mr. Bolton doubtless knows what he is talking about, and the Daily News concedes the Seed Tickers the victory, believing that the correspondent was erroneously informed.

The story sent in by the Shawnee correspondent stated that one of the Shawnee men knocked the ball so far that it took two days hard riding on a mule to recover it. The editor rather doubted this statement and omitted it from the story. Frequent mention was also made about the "yarn ball" and whether or not either side insisted on using a home-spun sphere instead of the regulation horse-hide ball is still a profound mystery.

"The team (Seed Tick) has fifty witnesses to prove this statement,"

Capt Bolton writes: "The Tigers were greatly enthused over their L. M. U. pitcher, but their feathers dropped on the fourth inning when one of the Seed Tick boys knocked their yarn ball away, and they went home crying for their co-co-ooo Mamma."

"We don't care so much for the victory, but we want a square deal. That is the rules o fthe Seed Tick team," the informant declares, adding this challenge to their adversaries: 'Come on, Tigers, use your bats instead of your tongues."

The Daily News is absolutely unbiased in the matter, of course, and wishes to give both sides a square deal. It cannot vouch for the "yarn ball" phase of the story, of course, believing that this is merely another baseball "yarn."

This newspaper welcomes all reports of ball games and insists that reporters of such games use the greatest degree of accuracy, even if they have to cut out some of the comedy writing, some of which is well calculated to arouse the ire of the opposing team.

EX-GOVERNOR PREDICTS DEATH BLOW

Edwin P. Morrow Says End of Power of Democrats.

CAMPAIGN WEAK

Says Former Kentucky Chief Executive in Interview With Butler.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Former Governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky predicted the present campaign will administer the death blow to the Democratic party as a powerful influence in American politics, in an interview today with Chairman Wm. M. Butler at Republican National headquarters.

"The Democratic party will emerge from the campaign of 1924 weaker than ever before in its history," said Governor Morrow. "It is being totally absorbed west of the Mississippi and it is losing ground so rapidly in the east that its death knell can be postponed only for a short time.

"The Democrats of Kentucky are awake to this situation. They like Davis as a man and respect him but with it so apparent that he hasn't a ghost's chance to win, they cannot afford to overlook the LaFollette menace, and they will quite generally support President Coolidge. If it were proper to do so, I could name many of our responsible democrats who will support the Republican ticket for the first time in their lives this year. Kentucky's 13 electoral votes may be needed to keep the presidential contest out of Congress and they want them to be case for the president.

"LaFollette has not much of a head on Kentucky. Out of a probable total vote of 950,000 I don't believe the socialist third party candidate will get more than 50,000 votes. The Kentucky farmer does not believe in LaFollette; about the only support he is receiving in our state is from the radical element and those others who do believe in his promises to deliver the sun, moon and stars shortly after his election. Outside of the solid south, Kentucky will be one of the few states in which the democratic party will get a substantial vote. That is due to the natural inherited strength of the party in our state. Kentucky has generally been close in contests between the two old parties, the normal democratic majority being about 22,000 votes Still despite that normal majority we have elected three republican governors in the last five gubernatorial campaigns. While I think the Kentucky result will be close I am firmly of the opinion that the president will carry the state. There is a noticeable lack of the old time fire and pep in the democratic campaign this year which has characterized their battles in the past. This, taken with the great following of conservative democrats that President Coolidge will attract, leaves no doubt in my mind as to how Kentucky will go."

FARM HAND IS GIVEN TWENTY YEAR SENTENCE

KILLED EMPLOYER

Widow of Slain Man Will Face An Accessory Charge Within a Few Days.

Associated Press.

MIDDLESBORO, Pa., Oct. 11.—Ralph Shadel, youthful farm hand who was convicted of second degree murder on his eighteenth birthday reecived a maximum sentence here today of not more than 20 years or less than 10 years in the state penitentiary.

The jury deliberated for two hours last night and found that he killed his employer last December. Mrs. Willow, widow of the slain man goes on trial as accessory, having asserted that she urged the slaying of her husband by Shadel, Shadel welcomed the sentence as a birthday gift his one wish being that his life be spared.

When verdict was read the youthful murderer smiled and embraced his parents and then laughed aloud. The friendship between the youth and Mrs. Willow aroused the suspicion after Willow's body was found with the head nearly blown off after a hunting trip.

WAR HERO SPURNS MERITED GLORIES

Sergt. Samuel Woodfill, Known in Middlesboro, Living at Fort Thomas

Associated Press.

FORT THOMAS, Ky., Oct. 11.—On October 12, 1918, six years ago tomorrow, a little company of American soldiers pressed forward at Cunel, France.

The lieutenant in charge went ahead through a rain of machine gun bullets. He crawled to the side of the first "nest."

Three of the enemy started toward him. But the lieutenant was quicker on the trigger than they were. He got all three of them and grappled with a fourth.

In the struggle the fourth went down, too, and the Yank officer regained his revolver.

He pushed on to the next nest. Under fire, he killed several more of the Huns and captured three.

"Failing to kill them with his revolver," reads the official citation, "he seized a pick lying nearby and killed both of them."

Today that lieutenant—Samuel Woodfill—whose exploit on October 12, 1918, caused General Pershing to proclaim him the "outstanding hero of the World War," lives in a modest little cottage a mile from here

He spends much of his time in his garden, caring for plants. A skilled carpenter, he finds joy in puttering around his house or doing odd jobs for neighbors.

His income is $133 a month, his retirement pay from the army. On this he supoprts his wife, formerly Miss Lorena B. Wiltshire, a descendant of Daniel Boone, and her mother.

He could have more money by government appropriation if he asked it but he has never done so. His buddies started a campaign for Congressional action, but he refused to participate in the plans, and they fell through.

None of the glories of the returned hero are his. He has spurned offers to go on the stage. He accepts no invitations to social functions.

JUSTICE FOR THE NEGROES.

The Post confesses a feeling of impatience akin to anger with those foes of the $75,000,000 bond issue wh oare seeking to make votes against it because, as they put it, "it provides money for nigger schools."

We have already expressed our disapprobation of that word "nigger." Our colored friends do not like it; they are right in not liking it. It will never be used in this newspaper, and it ought never to be used by anyone.

Aside from this is the spirit behind the argument mentioned above. It is perfectly true that this bond issue proposal, in addition to providing a system of primary roads for the whole State, and a real State university and four real normal schools for whites, does provide $1,000,000 for a normal school for training colored teachers. If the fact that it proposed to give the children in the colored schools of Kentucky better teachers is an argument against roads and a State university, and safe hospitals, we may not deny that the item is included.

But we cannot believe that the argument will appeal to many. Putting aside for the sake of argument our obligations to all our people, is it not as plain as noonday that we will be guilty of purblind folly if we continue to spend in Kentucky hundreds of thousands of dollars for colored education, and then refuse to provide efficient teachers for those schools? As things stand, Kentucky is doing practically nothing to train colored teachers. It is an act of injustice to begin with, and it is incredibly stupid injustice to begin with, and it is incredibly stupid in the second place.

The Post cannot believe that the foes of the bond issue will make votes by this kind of attack upon the colored people of Kentucky, and particularly upon the colored children. If this bond issue is passed, we will build and equip and support this colored normal school, and we will build a plant for feeble minded colored children. These are the facts; let the enemies of the bond issue make the most of them. And, incidentally, let the colored men and women of Kentucky understand that prominent among the opponents of the bond issue are those who argue that nothing should be done for the colored schools, and nothing should be done for feeble-minded colored children.—Louisville Post.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By E. R Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla, Board of Commerce

THAT some cities need more business and less politics. Politics never built a city or made better business.

THAT too much politics will always kill a city.

THAT it is time that many cities realized that fact and put politics out of city building.

THAT it takes business to build any city and it takes real hard work to make better business.

THAT when you find a good business city, you will find it a fitting testimonial to the progress and prosperity of its business men.

THAT in such cities you will find its citizens filled with a determination to eschew factional politics and vote for the men whom they honestly believe to be best capacitated to render efficient public service.

THAT where you find a city well managed you will find that the city officials care more for service than they do for votes.

To the People of Middlesboro:

It is seldom that the citizens of Middlesboro are privileged to have in their midst a man of such national importance as Lieutenant-Commander John Phillip Sousa. He has played his way into the heart of countless millions, until today he and his organization occupy a unique place, not only in the musical history of America alone, but in that of the entire world.

In addition, his wonderful musical compositions are every day becoming part of American life, particularly the patriotic side of our lives. Such compositions as his "Stars and Saripés Forever," and will live until the end of time, just as "America and the "Star Sprangled Banner" have lived.

In times of war Sousa's martial music has fired the American people with a patriotism that has known no defeat; in times of peace his melodies have guided the footsteps of his countrymen to new cultured attainments.

So it is with mingled love and pride that Middlesborough welcomes Lieutenant-Commander John Philip Sousa—now in the seventieth year of his most useful life. It has seemed emminently fit that the date of his engagement here, Monday, October 13th, should be known as "SOUSA DAY", and I therefore commend its observance to all Middlesboro, and ask that our people join in the prayer that America's beloved march-king may be spared to return here many, many times.

Sincerely,
a (Signed) J. E. EVANS,
Acting Mayor of Middlesborough

London Happy Theatre Boom

Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct . There are happy smiles in London's theatre land. West End playhouses are experiencing the biggest boom in attendance in many months.

"It's partly due to what has come to be known as the little social session, aided and abetted by a spell of weather which, if not ideal, is at least an improvement upon that which characterized the spring and summer months.

"The boom is undoubtedly due to the improvement in the weather" said one theatrical producer. Also the evenings are drawing in. Daylight saving is always a blow at the theatre Now people haven't time to play tennis before it get dark, and in consequence they go to the theatre.

"It is perhaps unfortunate that the standard of plays is not what it was pre-war days. There is a dearth of playwrights. No new names are coming along Of course there is an army of those who write high-brow stuff but their efforts are wasted on the general public. We want men who can write popular plays."

"All Americans"

One of the great matters of pride with Lieut. Com. John Philip Sousa, the famous bandmaster, who with his musicians are coming here Monday, always has been that he has never been compelled to go outside America to seek musicians and soloists of sufficient artistic atments to serve with his famous organization. During the 32 years he has directed his own band, the Sousa bandsmen and soloists almost without exception have been Americans by birth and have received their entire musical educations in America. This condition is true again this year, and while Miss Nora Fauchauld, soprano soloist with the great organization, was born in Norway, she is of American parentage, and her musical education has been acquired exclusively in America.

The presence of Miss Fauchauld with the Sousa organization is interesting because she is not from the Atlanti seaboard, which to date has given America the greatest number of its vocalists, but from the Dakota prairies. Miss Fauchauld was reared in the little town of Minot, North Dakota, and it was not until she was somewhat advanced in her musical career that she came for the first time to New York. She had secured her preliminary musical training near her home, and her grounding not only was in vocal music, but also in violi and piano. She was discovered by Mr. Sousa shortly after she had finished her training at the Institute of Musical Art in New York City, and about a year later, she was invited to accompany the band on its tour. Her appearances were so successful that she was reengaged.

Sousa once declared that in addition to her great value to the band as a soloist, Miss Fauchauld was of immense value for propaganda purposes. Perhaps the chief hobby of Mr. Sousa throughout most of his career has been to develop a taste for good music in all sections of America, and one of his keenest delights has been to observe compedent departments of music growing up not only in New York but even in the smallest of colleges and secondary schools throughout the country. When he began his career Sousa hoped to see the day when the prairie states for instance, might produce as good musicians as the Atlantic seaboard. Now it appears that within a few years, the best musical talent in the country will not come from the cities but from the sparsely settled districts.

"I fear the east is likely to fall behind the rest of the country in producing new musicians because life is so strained and nerve-racking. Our eastern boys and girls and particularly our girls, are jaded by the time they are twenty, and it seems that we have an enormous number of mere children who are sufferin gfrom nervous breakdowns —music requires great repose must be studied deliberately and not on the gallop. So I think our best musical talent for a generation, at least, is going to come from 'out where the west begins.'—which is where I got Miss Fauchauld.'

OLD CLOTHES CURRENCY TO REBUILD CITY

Natives Work for Garments, Build the Town.

RAGMAN WAS KING

War-Torn Town Near Where Noah's Ark Came to Rest Is Rebuilt in Unique Manner.

By Associated Press.

DARACHICAK, Oct., —Old clothes contributed by America's ever-charitable families have literally rebuilt this city, which before the war was a prosperous and happy community living within the shadow of Mount Ararat. Scores of shattered buildings have been restored from the proceeds of discarded garments which, to the half naked natives were of greater value than gold.

In a country swept by war and afterwards ravaged by the Turk, building material was almost impossible to obtain when American relief workers came here to rescue the last vestiges of the American race. The city was in ashes; money was worthless, food was difficult to obtain. There were 60 deaths daily from starvation and disease.

In order to relieve the situation the Americans were forced to resort to the primitive method of barter. In return for old clothing they received from inhabitants all kinds of fragments of houses from ruins of the larger neighboring cities. Streams of half-starved natives carrying timbers, joists, doors windows and loads of bricks on their backs poured into Darachichak from distant points and received in return warm coats, blankets, shawls and shoes from the cargoes of relief supplies sent from America. Police guards became exhausted in keeping the hordes of people in line.

For once the ragman was mightier than the millionaire; an old pair of shoes or winter-before lasts discarded overcoat had greater purchasing power than the American dollar. The natives had no incentive to work for mere money, they could have made no purchases with gold or silver, for there was nothing to buy in the devastated country. But with clothes to be had at the end of a hard day's work labor they turned to with a will, toiling under the weight of heavy timbers and loads of bricks and stones. The shortage of building materials soon became a surplus. The town which the Turks destroyed was restored and even enlarged by the construction of large buildings to house the thousands of orphans who sought refuge with the American relief organizations.

Darachichak, "the old-clothes-town," is known throughout the Near East, and Thomas Mills of New York city, the Near East Relief worker, who was in charge of the district became known as the head of the "National Bank of Old Clothes."

MAKE HOTEL OF SULTAN PALACE

Plans to Convert Palatial Turkish Home Into Modern Hostlery.

Associated Press

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct 1?—Rumors that Dolma Bagtche, the palace of the ex Sultan Mohammed V, is to be sold to a company that will convert the imperial residence and extensive grounds into a hotel and amusement park have stirred up much excitement in the old Turkish capital Will the Seraglio go next is the question generally asked Is the whole Bosphorus to be converted in to a Midway Plaisance' and robbed of its historic charm Will the Angora government sacrifice the ancient landmarks of the Turkish empire in an effort to raise money to keep the Nationalist government going

Turks and foreigners alike are asking these questions as they survey the panorama of mosques and palaces along the Golden Horn and Bosphorus which lend charm to this ancient city over which Europe and Asia have been fighting for many centuries

Dolma Bagtche was erected in 1853 It stands near the shore of the Bosphorus On the hills behind it are magnificent grounds and among the forest trees are many smaller residences as well as the Yildiz Kiosk, where recent sultans went on Fridays for their weekly prayers

Mohammed V, the sultan who was forced to abdicate by the Mustapha Kemal government, lived of recent years in one of the houses back from the waterfront He preferred to be away from the sight of the battle hip of many nations which lay along the Bosphorus It was at Yildiz Kiosk that foreigners have gathered for many years to watch the sultans make their imperial march from the palace grounds every Friday, to bow with more humble Mohammedans in reverence, with their faces toward Mecca

There are rumors that $1,500 000 has been offered for the palace and its extensive grounds and that promoters intend to convert it into a hotel which will be more magnificent than any in the east and have a theatre amusement park and gigantic cafe in connection with it The palace has a magnificent frontage on the Bosphorus and an extensive quay which will make it possible to handle tourist traffic direct from incoming steamers to the hotel

It becomes more apparent daily that when the German legation moves to Angora, other powers will also be forced to desert their magnificent legation buildings in Constantinople and follow the lead of Germany

Production has dropped from 287,000,000 tons in 1913 to 27[illegible]000,000 tons in 1923
